QUEEN SERVES RICE IN SLUM KITCHEN

Thousands of Unwashed Eat From Royal Hands.

PRINCESS MARY GIVES AID

North Lambeth Section of London Overcome by the Honor.

LONDON, June 14.-While thou sands of dirty-faced ragged children screamed applause, and beery-faced, frowsy mothers roared a deeper tone, the Queen of England and the Prin the Queen of England and the Prin-cess Mary drove to North Lambeth to open a new public kitchen for the food controller. The Queen ladled out boiled rice with her own royal hands, and the princess collected the food tickets and speared them on the files until over 2,000 meals had been

London's great extremes of riches and squalor were never shown in more decisive contrast.

The liftle vicar of the neighborhood church bent himself almost couble, and his face was red as the mayor's scarlet robe when Queen Mary shook his hand and said "How you do?" His little son of three Go you do?" His little son of three years, all decked out in starchy Sunday school clothes, wriggled with childish diffidence at the touch of the Queen's hand on his baby cheek.
"The Queen," said the vicar afterward, "the Queen, she shook hands with me and she gave my little boy a pat on the cheek. The Queen asked me 'Is this your little son." The Queen did that." Queen Serves Them All.

After the movie men finished "shooting" the royal mother and her daughter the neighborhood began to file past the food counter. Soup his past the food counter. Soup bowls, pitchers, platters, platters, assucers, and buckets, some washed as they had never been washed he fore, others with their natural democratic coat of grease were shoved into the white-gloved hands of the slegant lady in gray. The lady would is smile and ask: "What do you want? Rice? Roast beef?" The Queen did that. These unwashed, brown toothed, yellow complexionad natives of

Some were so overcome by the avent that they tilted their plates and apattered the floor with rice pudding Said Queen Mary to one dark-haired young woman: "Ahe these your children?" They are, all seven of 'em. Thank you, mum." She straightened the little brood into single file and marched out at the head of her own procession, carrying plates of boiled rice, gelatine, pudding, and roast beef.

Princess Mary, without looking at the reference books, is about nine-teen. She would be rated a "pippin" at any junior "prom" in any American school. A high school senior would notice that she has pretty blue eyes and the kind of a mouth that was made for sundaes at the corner drug store on these hot summer evenings. Standing always close by her mother's side, she seemed alightly "fussed" during the ceremonial presfussed" during the ceremonial presentations. Her hands shifted somewhat nervously, while her pink cheeks flushed a deeper pink.

His job was to regulate the flow of customers. An inquisitive fox terrier, dirty in harmony with the neighborhood and sniffing hopefully the scent of roast beef, was shooed away by the cop. Undaunted, the purp hid among the next batch of customers and sneaked in to have a look at the Queen. And he was such a nervy, persistent little cuss that the titled ladies clustering her majesty allowed him to stay. "Good-by," said the Queen to various people when the neighborhood had been fed.

Southerner in London Hospital Awaits Americans' Coming.

LONDON, June 14 .- Introducing Mr. Harry McMichael, of Augusta, Ga. Mac has been strafed thrice by the Kaiser's missiles, but he hasn't taken the count yet, and all he wants is an other shot at a spiked helmet.

Mac learned the game in the Second United States Cavalry. He joined the Fifteenth Canadian Battalion in June, 1915. A machine gun bullet hit his leg in the fall of that year. Back from the hospital, a shell fragment nicked his brow as he went "over the Nebraskan Loses 4,000 Gallons, His Forty Years' Supply.

QMAHA, June 14.—Before Statewide prohibition went into effect in Ne-braska on May 1 of this year, Anton Larson, a farmer living near Omaha went around to a life insurance company, had himself examined and found that according to the mortuary tables he would probably live for forty years Then Larson bought himself a forty years' supply of liquor and salted it away out at his farm. He built a special house for the liquor and stored it away in the most systematic manner. There were 4,000 gallons of beer, whisky, brandy, wine, and other drinks. Larson had estimated that he would Larson had estimated that he would drink 100 gallons every year for the bal-ance of his lifetime. That is nearly a third of a gallon a day. Under the Nebraska prohibition law an individual can have a "reasonable" amount of liquor in his own home, provided his supply was purchased and laid in before the law went into effect. After the law became effect tive no further liquor could be rought into the State.

But Larson made one mistake in storing his life supply of liquor. The law provides that the liquor shall be kept in the home. Larson had constructed a special house for his liquor. It was not actually in his home so Sheriff Clark raided the place and brought the entire supply down to the courthouse, where it fills several

Not only was his 4,000 gallons taken, but the court placed a fine of $190 on Larson for having liquor in his possession outside of his home.
